

Welcome to the 3rd issue of the JBOT Newsletter! This issue includes snapshots of active projects in the U.S., a student-practitioner reflection on occupational justice, and notables on research, accolades and resources. Our next issue will feature international collaboration at the Canadian OT Association Conference. Stay tuned...!

AOTA 2019

We had a wonderful time in New Orleans at

Active Projects

OT and Recovery Courts,
Kaylin Flamm, MOT, OTR/L. Mental Health
Court Case Manager and Occupational Therapist.
http://www.rutherfordcountyttn.gov/drug_court/

As the number of incarcerated Americans continues to rise, the work of diversion programs becomes increasingly important. Recovery Courts are nationally recognized as a successful treatment and diversion option for many Americans facing jail time for non-violent offenses. Drug Courts and DUI Courts are becoming increasingly common, in an effort to provide treatment to individuals experiencing substance abuse problems. In places like Rutherford County in Middle Tennessee, diversion courts have become even more client centered to include not only DUI and Drug courts, but also Veterans Court, Co-Occurring Court, and Mental Health Court.

I am Kaylin Flamm and I have been fortunate enough to join Rutherford

Student to Practitioner Reflection

During my first semester at the MGH Institute of Health Professions students participate in a course called Foundations

JBOT's Core Team Includes:

Lisa Jaegers, PhD, OTR/L,
Saint Louis University
[JBOT Organizer]

Cynthia Ballentine , MSOT,
OTR/L, St. Louis Community
College

Please send content for future newsletters to:
Lisa Jaegers
ljaegers@slu.edu